

KEV185: Casa Ze Luis

Big farmhouse for renovation on 3,200m²

Casa Zé Luis is a stunningly beautiful farmhouse of stone construction located just outside the village of Rabaçal in the heart of Portugal.

The property is currently being used as a cheese factory but could easily be converted back to a dwelling. The farmhouse has had its internal wooden floor removed in order to accommodate the cheese making equipment. A new wooden floor would have to be constructed so as to create first floor bedrooms/bathrooms.

The external dimensions of the property are 24m x 5.7m. The usable space of the property is at present 160m² but this figure would double with the construction of the new floor.

There is approximately 3,200m² (0.75 acre) of land with olive and various fruit trees.

The property has fantastic views over the valley towards the Castle of Rabaçal and the 4th Century BC Roman Villa.

The university city of Coimbra is 20 mins North and the medieval town of Penela, with all its modern-day amenities, is just 5 mins East.

This property would make a superb family-sized country home, or could be converted to rural tourist accommodation.

Price: 185,000 euros
